...PLENTY...

...PROSPERITY...

These can be the fruits of the glorious Victory won by our fighting men. Yet how good the peace, the plenty and the prosperity that lie ahead can be, will depend on you and on us. Their task is finished. Ours has just begun, anew. Let us make our welcome home for them, a welcome back to a job, to security, to the freedom from fear for which they fought all these years.

HAIL THE CONQUERING HERO'S RETURN...

No welcome we could have given your fighting man meant more to him than your first kiss. No clarion could herald his home coming better than the sight of his loved ones waiting for him... your arms about him... the smile and shriek of delight from his youngster... and Buster's warm red tongue searching for that remembered hand. He's home. He's yours... but we also have a share in him... But for him we might be living in tyranny instead of enjoying the liberties of a free world. The key to freedom-loving nations and our hearts is in his hands. May he always enjoy the freedom for which he so gallantly fought.)
